The Blueprint Package: for all your family law needs

“A ‘free initial consultation’ is like a wolf dressed in sheep’s clothing – a sales pitch in disguise”.

A free initial consultation sounds attractive but, more often than not, it does not promise anything other than a meet, greet and generic advice that is freely available on the internet.

At Watkins & Gunn, we want to offer something of real value; something that provides you with the tailored advice and information you need to be able to plan your next steps and your future.

Our Blueprint Package is broken down into three stages: Information Gathering, Bespoke Advice and a Follow Up.

At a fixed cost, we offer an initial consultation with you either in person, by Zoom or by telephone. With completion of our questionnaire, we can then embark on thorough information gathering with you and a discussion about your ideals and needs. Whatever your family law issue is, our expert solicitors can then provide you with bespoke advice on how to proceed.

We recognise that these initial discussions can be overwhelming as we can take you through a number of areas of law and how they should be navigated.

There can be a lot of information to take in, especially at times when the issues are emotionally difficult. We believe there is an enormous benefit to our clients in providing a clear and concise summary in writing following the meeting. This summary includes a tailored, forward-looking route map for you and the legal issues you face. This is your “Blueprint” – a plan which shows what can be achieved and how it can be achieved.

We will provide sensible practical advice that will be open and straightforward in terms of likely outcomes, an estimate of how long things should take and of the likely cost.

If you are interested in our ‘Blueprint Package’ then more information can be found on our website or you can speak to a member of our team on 01633 241163.
